

Why a transient→sustained continuum: the GLM TF kernel (deconvolved impulse response) broadens SMOOTHLY with width (illustrative-by-construction — bins are defined on this kernel's FWHM — but shows what 'narrow/broad' means and that the morph is graded, not two shapes)

Deconvolved TF kernel broadens narrow→broad (latency-aligned; what the transient→sustained axis IS)

